SMALL POWERS IN BIG WARS: A THEORETICAL APPROACH FOCUSED ON THE CASE OF FINLAND AND ROMANIA DURING THE WORLD WAR II
(Summary)

The author tries to identify the specificities of the international actions of a “small” country, compared with a classical “Great Power”. His investigation focused on the different European regions, choosing examples as Finland and Sweden, Romania and Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Bulgaria, versus Great Britain or the Soviet Union. The comparisons bear the special mark of the Second World War context.
