Mihai-Stefan Ceausu
The Romanians from Bucovina between 1914-1918 : from loyalty to Irredentism
(Summary)

The author presents the evolution of the Romanian elite’s political options in Bucovina during the First World War. The loyalty toward the legal regime of the Habsburg Empire was constantly diminished by the military defeats and by the Romanian actions against the Austro-Hungary. Finally, the national impulse had gained the majority of the public opinion and the Romanian political elite in Bucovina proclaimed the unification of this province with the Romanian Kingdom.

Keywords: nationalism, political parties, the First World War, The Habsburg Monarchy